Results happen when OEE is managed NOT just measured. Results happen when people take action and respond real time. Redzone is built to make that happen from day one.

We leverage easy to use technology and industry best practices to drive positive culture change and sustainable productivity improvements in food and beverage plants. By developing the skills and structure of the workforce; we provide the framework to engage front line employees in identifying and solving operational problems.

Redzone facilitates communication throughout the organization, aligning departments in producing safe, quality product with maximum effectiveness.

“Before we saw a very top down approach, not much operator engagement. Instead of focusing on people driving results, we had more of a check boxes exercise. Now, the level of operator engagement and how that has turned into results is amazing.”

Terry LeDoux - VP Digital Manufacturing,
Nestlé Purina
